His Own Grandfather. The complication of relationship brought about by marriage is the cause of many a family squabble, but it is seldom one hears of fatal results attending such matters. According to a contemporary, a resident of Titusville, Pennsylvania, he was his own grandfather.

The following is a copy of singular letter he left: "I married a widow who had a a grown-up daughter. My father visited our house very often, fell in love with my step-daughter, and married her. So my father became my son-in-law, and my step-daughter my mother, because she was my father's wife. Some time afterwards my wife had a son; he was my father's brother-in-law and my uncle, for he was the brother of my step-mother. My father's wife—i. e., my step-daughter—had also a son; he was, of course, my child had brother, and in the meantime my grandchild, for he was the son of my daughter.
